

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and system for using a website to provide information, goods and services to an employee is provided. The method identifies information, goods or services that may assist employees perform their employment functions and the providers of the information, goods, and services. The method includes developing a website that enables an employee to obtain information, goods, or services to assist them perform their employment tasks. The system features a website that enables an employee to obtain information, products, or services to assist them perform employment functions.